

BRAND & VISUAL IDENTITY

Turn your knowledge into a living archive anyone can talk to.

01 · THE NAME

Bringing knowledge forth.

Poysis comes from poiesis: the act of bringing something forth, of making the invisible visible.

A person's knowledge is real but scattered, locked in sermons, files, essays, and years of practice. Poysis brings it forth into something living: an archive that speaks, remembers, and points back to the source. The meaning is carried quietly, never announced. The brand should feel like a smart, generous person explaining something clearly. Confident but not cold, intelligent but never intimidating.

Visionary

We see what it could become.

Warm

Human, alive, approachable.

Peer-to-peer

We speak as equals.

02 · THE LOGO

A stroke that returns to itself.

The mark is the ouroboros reduced to a single gesture: a tapered stroke that curls around and meets its own tail. The eternal return, knowledge that feeds itself, asked and answered without end. No serpent, nothing literal, only the curve. Set beside a lowercase Source Serif wordmark for warmth and quiet authority.

ICON MARK

poysis

WORDMARK

REVERSED

STACKED LOCKUP

CLEAR SPACE & MINIMUM SIZE

DON'T

poysis

Don't set the wordmark in another typeface

Don't recolor with off-brand hues

Don't stretch, skew, or rotate

Don't place on low-contrast color

03 · COLOR

Warm, living, grounded.

Sage and deep olive carry the “living” quality of growth and calm. Parchment keeps everything warm and human; oxblood adds quiet authority. Never stark black-and-white, never clinical.

Balance: let parchment and cream dominate (~70%), olive and ink structure (~22%), with sage and oxblood as deliberate accents (~8%). Color should feel generous, never loud.

04 · TYPOGRAPHY

Editorial warmth, plain clarity.

A warm serif for headlines gives the established, trustworthy feel; a clean humanist sans keeps everything readable and unintimidating. Nothing decorative, nothing that calls attention to itself over the message.

Display

Source Serif 4

Aa

Knowledge, brought to life.

Headlines, quotes, the wordmark. Weights 500–600. Used sparingly and large.

Text

Albert Sans

Aa

Clear, calm, and highly legible at every size.

Body, UI, labels, buttons. Weights 400–700. The everyday voice of the brand.

Display / 60

A living archive

Heading / 40

Built for the way you work

Body / 18

Every answer cited back to the original source.

Eyebrow / 12.5

YOUR LIVING ARCHIVE

05 · VOICE

“You've built something real. Here's how to make it reach further.”

We speak to people as equals: pastors, lawyers, teachers, and thinkers deciding whether to trust us with their life's work. Confident but not cold. Intelligent but not intimidating. Modern but not trendy.

WE ARE

- ✓ Warm, generous, human
- ✓ Clear over clever
- ✓ Respectful of expertise
- ✓ Plain-spoken and trustworthy

WE ARE NOT

- ✗ Technical or jargon-heavy
- ✗ Hype-y or breathless about “AI”
- ✗ Cold, corporate, faceless
- ✗ Talking down to anyone